

Itchen surges at high tide

Friday, 03 January 2014 12:46

This was the scene at around noon on Friday (Jan 3), during an unusually high Itchen tide and following days of rain. The river breached its banks at Riverside Park, above, as well as next to The Hard in St Denys.

□

One Priory Road resident at The Junction pub end said it was the fifth time nearby gardens have been flooded this week. There was also flooding beneath the railway bridge on Priory Road, passable with care.

Windmill Hill, 16th January 2014. The Itchen has risen to a level of 12.6m AOD, which is a record for the river. The water is completely

A man negotiates the park 'footpath' beyond Woodmill

Woodmill: passable by car

Cycling at 102 by Jim O'Riordan

Just look at the CO2 by the Cliford in the background, during high tide at Riverside Park!